PROFILE

I am an ambitious software developer focusing on web applications, where my strengths lie in front-end programming and UI/UX optimization. I am currently studying for my master's degree, seeking to improve my product development, management, and innovation skills. I am a really social person and have a variety of experience in group work of all kinds, both as a leader and member. In me, you will find someone who thinks it is crucial to create a positive atmosphere along with the group of people I work with, who wants to know how the projects I work on relate to the organization's vision and goals and has the passion for chasing big ideas until they become a reality.
